

Leo and the Lighthouse Light

a story to read and color, starring the Park family

The Parks spend the weekend by the sea. Leo collects shells.
Hana collects sand, mostly in her mouth. Silly Hana!

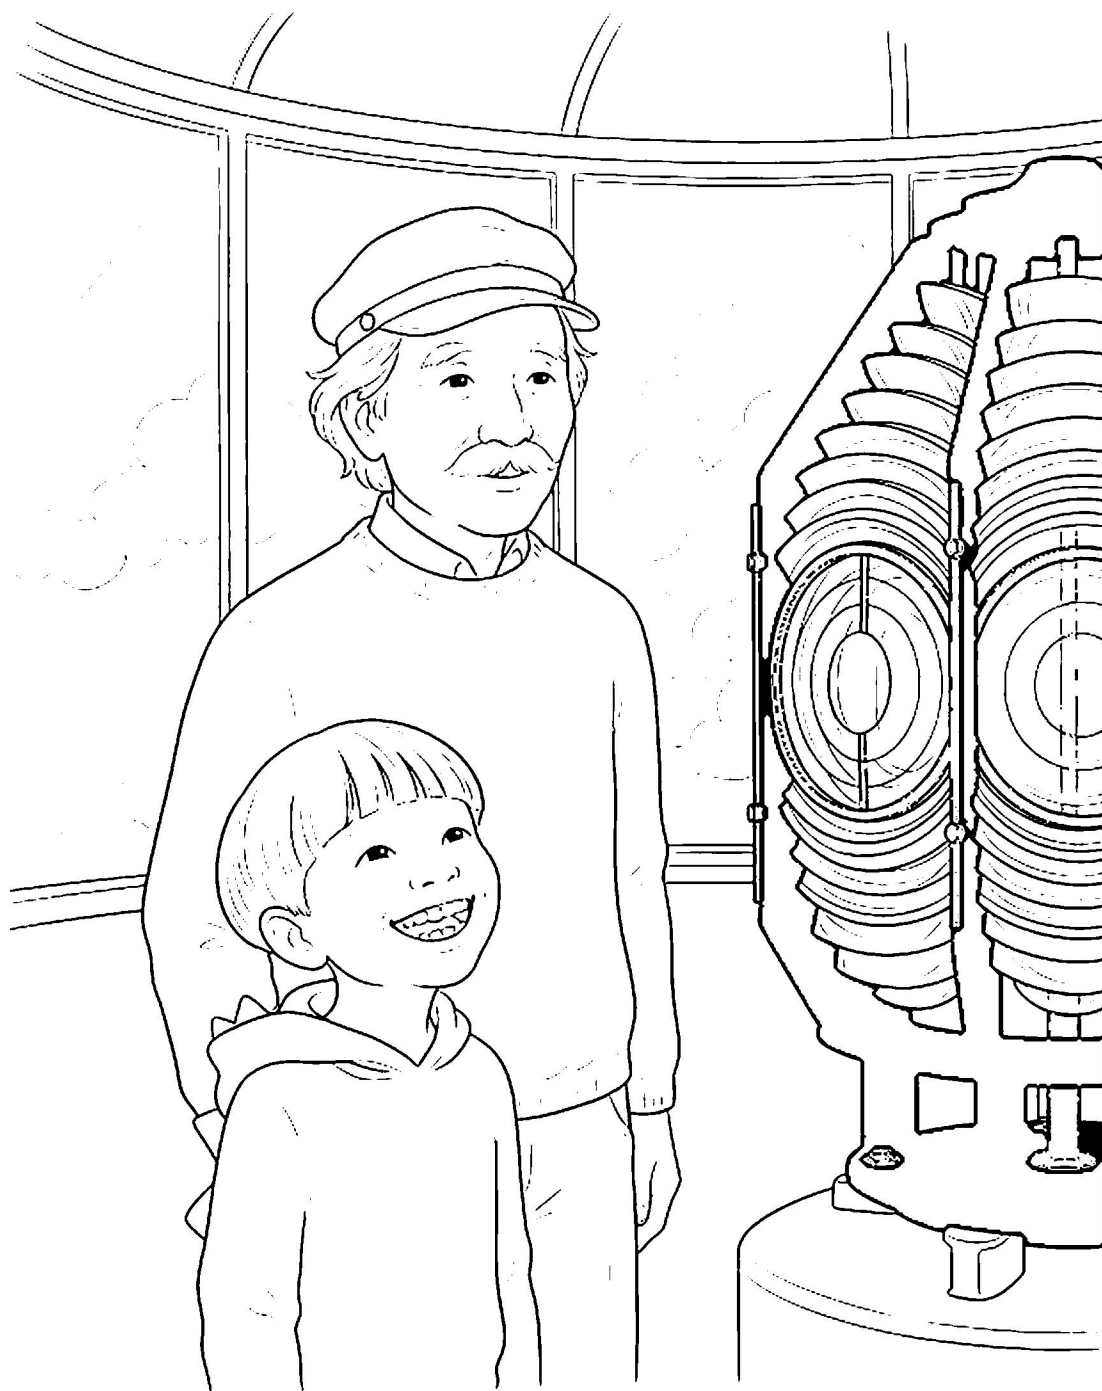

In a tide pool, Leo meets Juno, a little seal pup. Can you find the sea star, the crab and the snail hiding near her?

Grandpa Kim is the lighthouse keeper. “Every night my light helps the boats find home,” he says. Up, up, up the spiral stairs!

But tonight the fog rolls in, thick and white. And the big lamp goes dark. Click. Nothing. Oh no!

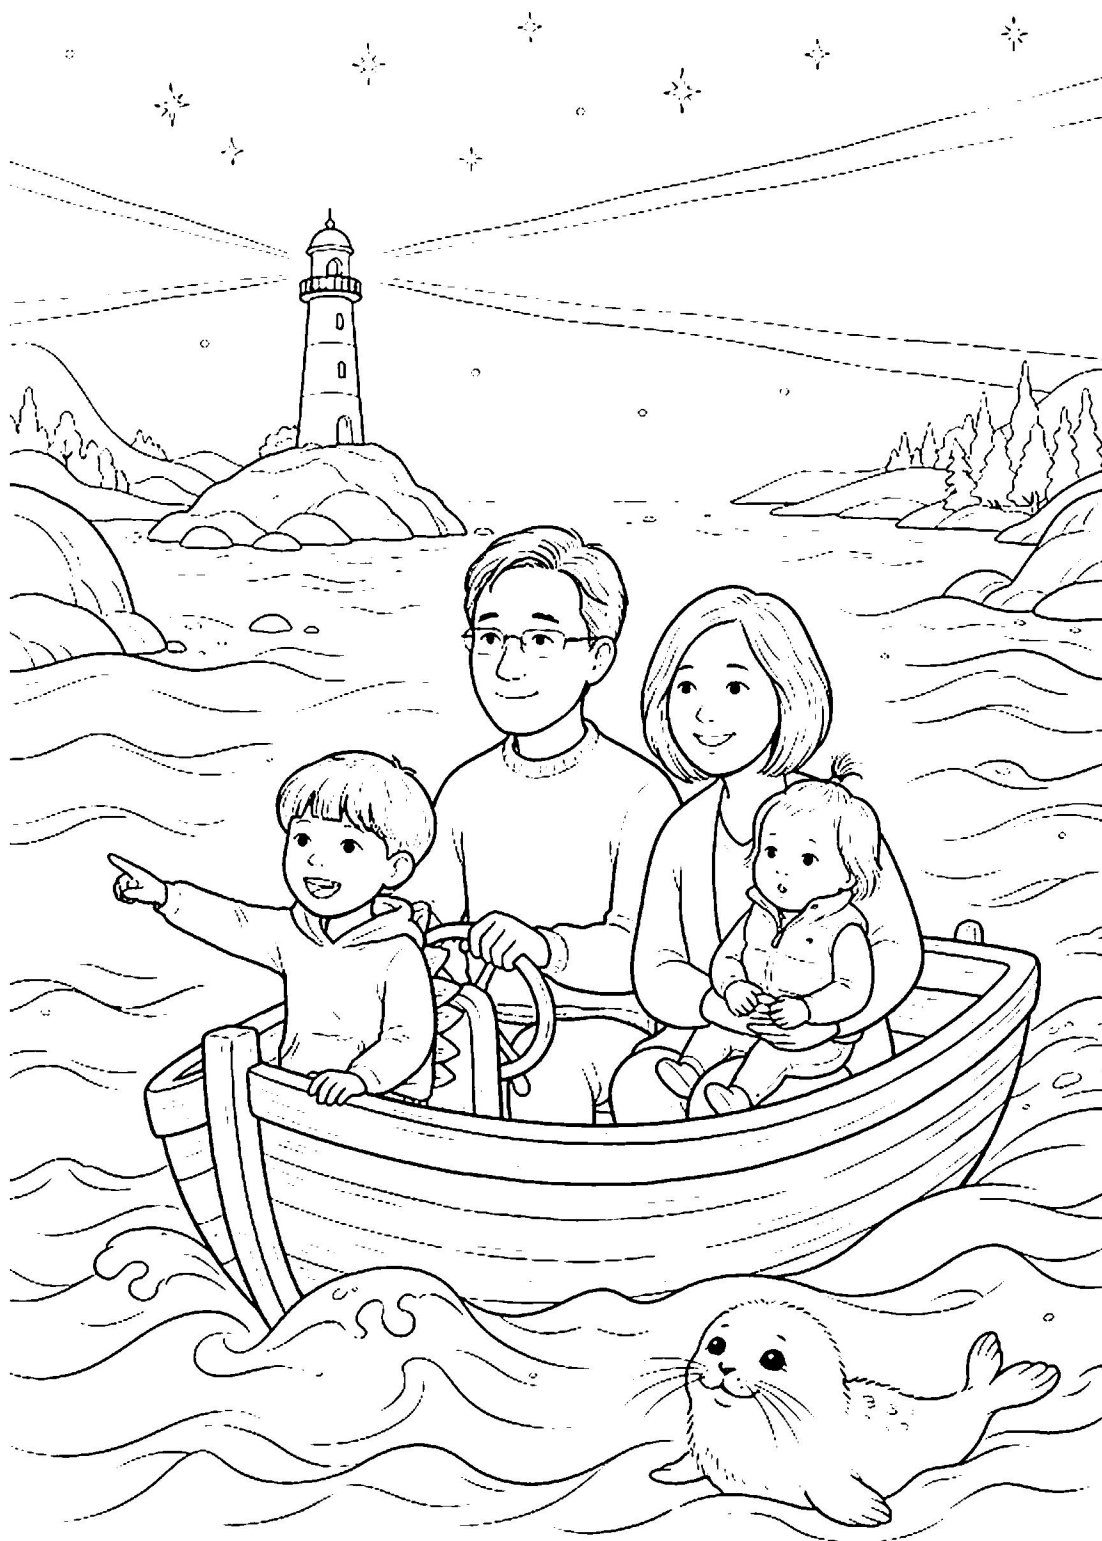

Out at sea, a little fishing boat is lost in the fog. Mom points.
“They need our light, and fast!”

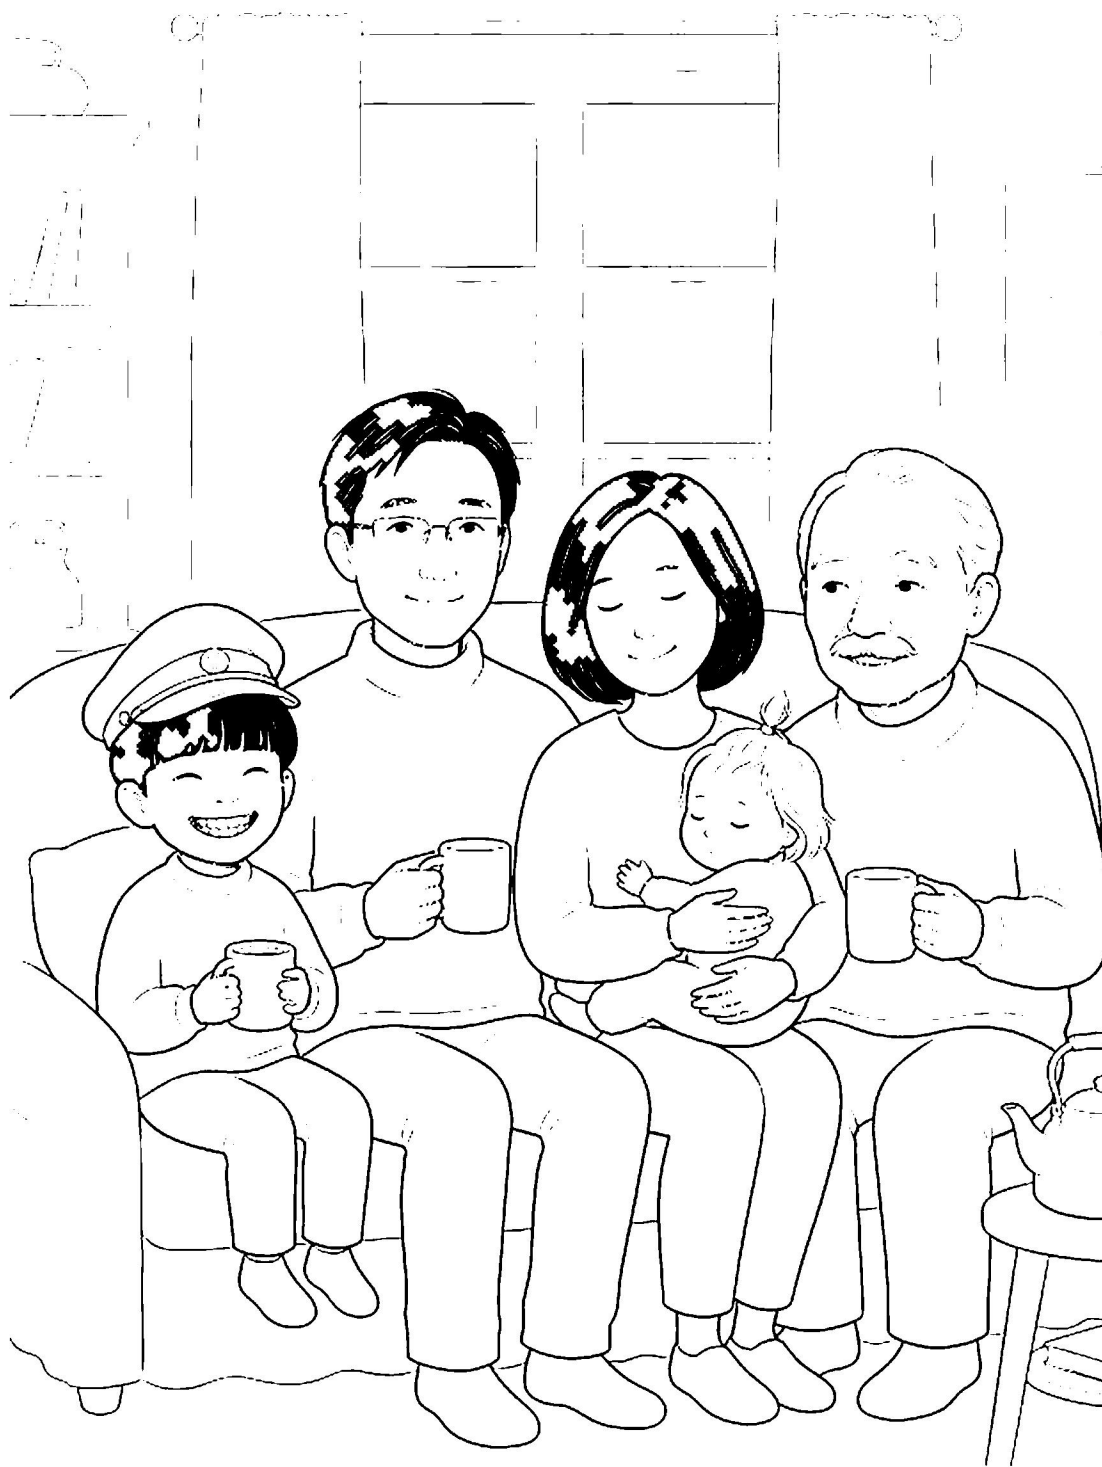

Leo finds the problem: a loose wire! Dad holds the flashlight.
Leo is small enough to reach. Careful... twist... there!

FLASH! The light sweeps across the sea. Round and round it goes. Juno swims ahead to guide the boat home. Toot toot!

Back home, the family drinks warm barley tea and tells the story again. “Leo, the lighthouse helper!” Goodnight, sea. Goodnight, Juno.
